1. (currently amended) A method implemented at least in part by a computer for refining a user query, the method comprising:

grouping a plurality of terms into a search concept, the search concept being a category that represents a clustering of the terms;

examining a query log to determine to a number of times that each of the terms appears within queries stored in the query log; [and] calculating a relative popularity for the search concept by adding the number of times that each of the terms appears within the queries stored in the query log, whereby the relative popularity is calculated relative to at least one other search concept in a list of search concepts;

receiving a query from a user; and mapping the user query to the search concept.

2. (previously presented) The method of claim 1, further comprising initiating, upon the user's request, a preferred query associated with the search concept to provide improved search results.

3. (previously presented) The method of claim 35, wherein the listed search concepts are popular search concepts and wherein their relative popularity can be used to order the displayed list.

4. canceled.

5. (previously presented) The method of claim 2, wherein initiating the preferred search query comprises selecting one of the terms associated with the concept that has appeared a greatest number of times within queries stored in the query log.

6-7. canceled.

8. (original) The method of claim 1, wherein the method is performed by execution of instructions stored on a computer-readable medium.

11. (previously presented) The method of claim 10, wherein the set of improved search results comprises one or more sub-sets of the set of improved search results, each sub-set associated with one of the listed search concepts and having a number of search results proportional to the relative popularity of the listed search concept.

12-13. canceled.

14. (previously presented) The method of claim 10, wherein automatically initiating the preferred search query comprises selecting, for each of the listed search concepts associated with the preferred query, one of the terms associated with the listed search concept that has appeared a greatest number of times within queries stored in the query log.

15-27 canceled.

28. (previously presented) A system comprising:

a search concept that is a category which represents a clustering of a plurality of terms;

a server communicatively coupled with a client at which a user generates a query, wherein the server groups the terms into the search concept, examines a query log to determine a number of times that each of the terms appears within queries stored in the query log, calculates a relative popularity for the search concept by adding the number of times that each of the terms appears within queries stored in the query log, and maps the user query to the search concept, whereby the relative popularity is calculated relative to at least one other search concept in a list of search concepts.

29. (previously presented) The system of claim 28, wherein the server is a search engine and the client is a web browser.

30. (previously presented) The system of claim 28, wherein the server and the client are applications.

31-33 canceled.

34. (previously presented) The method of claim 1, comprising mapping the user query to the at least one other search concepts in the list of search concepts.

Allowable Subject Matter

Art Unit: 2164

7. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: the 37 CFR 1.131 was persuasive. Claims 1-3, 5, 8, 10-11, 14, 28-30, 34-35, as renumbered 1-13 are allowed.

Regarding independent claims 1, and 28, the prior art of record fails to disclose or suggest the claimed provision of: grouping a plurality of terms into a search concept, the search concept being a category that represents a clustering of the terms examining a query log to determine to a number of times that each of the terms appears within queries stored in the query log, calculating a relative popularity for the search concept by adding the number of times that each of the terms appears within the queries stored in the query log, whereby the relative popularity is calculated relative to at least one other search concept in a list of search concept, in conjunction with remaining claim provisions, is not taught or suggested, or rendered obvious over the prior art of record or that encountered in searching the invention.

8. The dependent claims 2-3, 5, 8, 10-11, 29-30, 34-35, being further limiting to the independent claims, definite and enabled by the Specification are also allowed.
